

Volunteers Polly Peikoff and Isadore "Izzy" Zisman chat at a reception held April 11 in Chapel Hall to celebrate the National Information Center on Deafness' 10th anniversary.

NICD staff, volunteers, friends gather to celebrate 10th anniversary

Words of praise and goodwill filled Chapel Hall as the National Information Center on Deafness (NICD) celebrated its 10th anniversary with a reception for its staff members, volunteers, and on- and off-campus colleagues from 3 to 5 p.m. on April 11.

"None of NICD's accomplishments happened overnight," said Director Loraine DiPietro. When DiPietro became NICD's director in 1982, the center had three fact sheets, several reading lists, and about 200 other items that could be used to respond to inquiries. "That was quite a formidable accomplishment for a center that had opened only a year and a half earlier," she said.

Today, NICD has more than 26 fact sheets, 21 resource lists that are updated annually, more than 40 reading lists, and almost 700 other information items in its collection, said DiPietro. It answered 10,100 requests for information in 1989—a 32 percent increase over the previous year.

DiPietro stressed that none of NICD's accomplishments has occurred in a vacuum. People from other areas of the University and from other organizations, plus volunteers, provided expert information, helped write and review publications, solved computer problems, and answered information requests, she said.

President Jordan commended the NICD staff, saying, "The people inside NICD are really a fine example of people doing significantly more with the same number of staff. They're really an excellent model of what Gallaudet can be."

Guest speaker Carol Valdivieso, director of the National Information Center on Children and Youth with Handicaps, stressed the need to take research and make it understandable to average people. She told the group that NICD's fact sheet is the only one they do not write themselves, "because theirs is so good."

Jack Gannon, special assistant to the president for advocacy and the administrator in charge of NICD, spoke to the group as well. "As a Gallaudet administrator and as a deaf person, I have the highest regard for the work that the NICD does," he said.

Among the invited guests was Rhona Hartman, director of the Higher Education and the Handicapped Resource Center of the American Council on Education, which has worked with NICD from its very beginnings. "We worked with NICD to develop some materials that could be used in mainstream environments, and it has been a marriage made in heaven since," she said.

Other guests at the reception included Jane Mortenson, NICD's first director, and Charlotte Hawkins-Shepard, who helped start the center. David Wolfe, who left his position as NICD's coordinator of information services in 1988, also returned for the anniversary celebration. Wolfe is now director of information collection and exchange for the Peace Corps.

Betsy Cunningham, an attorney with the Maryland State Bar Association who has continued advocacy work for deaf people since working with DiPietro at Gallaudet in the '70s, also returned.

NICD's staff and volunteers were also present. Since 1983, volunteers have given NICD 9,000 hours of service, and between 1986 and 1989 they answered close to one third of the 32,496 requests NICD received. DiPietro described her staff as committed, creative, enthusiastic, bright, resourceful, and hardworking. "You want model workers? They're model workers!" she said.

Small grants awarded for 31 projects

Announcements

The Gallaudet University Alumni Association will sponsor a dinner theater in "Ole Jim" on Friday, May 18, and Saturday, May 19, featuring a buffet and a play based on deaf culture entitled "Deaf—Pa, What?" presented by CHALB Productions. The evening begins with cocktails from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner. The play begins at 8 p.m. To order tickets, which are $25 each, make checks payable to GUAA Host Service, specifying the preferred night for the event, and send them to Mike Kaika at the Alumni House.

The next volunteer day for the Gallaudet community at Miriam's Kitchen, a breakfast program serving homeless people, is Monday, April 30. Carpools will leave from behind West Office Building at 6 a.m., or people can meet at the site, located at the Western Presbyterian Church, 1906 H. St. NW, at 6:30 a.m. For more information, contact Barbara White via VAX (BJWHITE) or call x5160.

The final event in the School of Communication's 10th Anniversary celebration will be an awards ceremony and reception, also featuring a performance entitled "American Sign Language Storytelling: An Art to Experience," on Friday, April 27, from 4 to 6 p.m. The event is open to the campus community.

"Deaf Mosaic," which can be seen every Sunday at 9:30 a.m. on The Discovery Channel, will feature a program April 29 on life for deaf people in war-torn Beirut.

A tree will be planted in memory of Kathryn Walker between the Washburn Arts and West Office Buildings on April 28 at 1 p.m. Walker worked for Gallaudet as head residence hall adviser for many years, retired, then returned to work for the University's catering service until her death on Oct. 27, 1989. Walker is survived by, among others, her daughter and son-in-law, Sally and Jack Dunn, both Gallaudet employees. The tree will mark the center of a garden for which people can purchase plaques in memory of others. For more information, call Sally Dunn at x5400.

New premium plan may be available

Gallaudet employees may elect to have their health and dental insurance premiums paid before taxes, if the Board of Trustees approves the plan next month.

According to Elaine Vance, the University's benefits/employment specialist, through the "Flexible Premium Plan," which could be implemented beginning with the June 3 pay period, employees may choose to have their salaries reduced by the amount they currently pay for health and/or dental insurance premiums. If so, taxes will be based on gross salary minus the insurance premiums. As a result, the employee realizes an increase in his or her net pay.

For example, an employee now earns $1,000 biweekly and pays $50 for health insurance and $20 for dental insurance. The employee pays federal and state taxes based on $1,000. Under the flexible premium plan, the $1,000 may be reduced by the insurance premiums and taxes are then

Computed on $930, resulting in an increase in net take-home pay. (Retirement deductions and later retirement annuities continue to be based on the full gross income.)

Employees who decide to select the plan should know two things: You cannot change your mind during the year unless you have a change in family status. And, if you decide to cancel your health and/or dental insurance, the deductions will still be made until the year is over.

Also, if you normally itemize income tax deductions and claim health and/or dental insurance premiums as part of medical expenses, you will not be able to do so if you elect this benefit. (If medical costs are usually sufficient to claim for tax purposes, you may want to consult your tax adviser before enrolling in the plan.)

The deadline for enrolling in the plan is May 11. For more information, contact Vance at x5111.

Bookstore soliciting opinions

Gallaudet's Bookstore will be undergoing major revamping this summer, and input by the University community is being solicited to help make the new Bookstore best serve the campus' needs.

"This is a very exciting time of change," said Dr. Elaine Costello, the new director of the Bookstore. "Now is the time for the campus' voices to be heard as these changes are being contemplated."

"We want to become more customer service oriented, more responsive to the needs of the campus," Costello added.

The most frequent complaints heard concerning the Bookstore, Costello said, are its long cash register lines, its limited selection of merchandise, and that items are poorly displayed.

Costello said the lengthy waits in the checkout line should be eliminated once a new computer system, by which the cash registers will be run, is installed this summer. A new service that will be added, she said, is to make catalogues of deafness-related materials available for special orders from a wide variety of publishers.

Faculty, staff, and students are encouraged to fill in the form below, listing any suggestions and criticisms concerning the Bookstore. Respondents can remain anonymous.
